

How to be creative and effective with the new National Curriculum for English

28th February

Fairfield Enterprise Centre, Louth, Lincolnshire

- Prepare for the biggest curriculum change since 1998
- Clarify time scales and find out what will change and what will stay the same
- Consider changes to assessment and expectations when levels are removed
- Understand up-to-date research on how best to teach grammar
- Identify effective strategies for teaching reading, including heritage literature and poetry

This course is for Primary English Subject leaders, Primary headteachers, Senior leaders and experienced teachers. This is a repeat of the popular course run in November. 100% of delegates rated the day as 'Excellent'.

"A super input and discussion. Lots to try straight away."

"I now have an in-depth knowledge of the new curriculum and what we need to do in our school to prepare for the change. I've learnt so much."

"It was all really useful thank you - so clear and 'grounded'."

During the day, delegates will explore the programmes of study for KS1 and KS2 and consider the freedoms available to schools to create an innovative and creative curriculum to inspire both teachers and children. They will have opportunities to identify school priorities and implementation strategies to support school wide innovation.

Cost: £110 per delegate

To book your place, please contact enquiries@emmarogers.org.uk

Emma Rogers is an experienced advisor with an extensive knowledge of literacy, assessment and learning. She provides consultancy support to local authorities, schools and networks on a range of projects to develop learning and literacy. With a varied career as classteacher, senior school leader and teaching and learning consultant, she worked for several years for the Primary National strategies leading the successful Every Child a Writer programme. She has a history of raising attainment and broad educational expertise with a track record of effective educational leadership and project management to deliver a national programme involving over 130 Local Authorities and 1200 Leading teachers. She now operates as a freelance consultant offering the design, delivery and evaluation of professional development programmes and materials, drawing on years of experience as an outstanding classteacher.