

How to be creative and effective with the new National Curriculum for English Day 2

16th May 2014

Fairfield Enterprise Centre, Louth, Lincolnshire

- Prepare for the biggest curriculum change since 1998
- Explore strategies for effective teaching of grammar
- Consider innovative ways to inspire a love of poetry
- Identify initiatives and practical ideas to encourage all your pupils to read for pleasure.

This course is for Primary English Subject leaders, Primary headteachers, Senior leaders and experienced teachers who have previously attended Day 1 or have received similar training linked closely to the content of Day 1.

During the day, delegates will consider the freedoms available to schools to create an innovative and creative curriculum to inspire both teachers and children with a particular focus on reading for pleasure, poetry and grammar teaching. They will reflect on the steps their school has already taken to prepare for the new National curriculum, evaluate the success so far and identify school priorities and implementation strategies to support school wide innovation .

Cost: £110 per delegate

To book your place, please contact enquiries@emmarogers.org.uk

Emma Rogers is an experienced advisor with an extensive knowledge of literacy, assessment and learning. She provides consultancy support to local authorities, schools and networks on a range of projects to develop learning and literacy. With a varied career as classteacher, senior school leader and teaching and learning consultant, she worked for several years for the Primary National strategies leading the successful Every Child a Writer programme. She has a history of raising attainment and broad educational expertise with a track record of effective educational leadership and project management to deliver a national programme involving over 130 Local Authorities and 1200 Leading teachers. She now operates as a freelance consultant offering the design, delivery and evaluation of professional development programmes and materials, drawing on years of experience as an outstanding classteacher.